FINANCIAL.
NEW YORK, March 4.—Although there were no developments during today's short session of the market, stocks again were under the uncertain influences resulting from the situation at Washington. Trading was light to the point of utter apathy, and altogether of professional origin. Even with the element of hesitation, a definite stand and the net result, which included variable losses and a few gains, was due not so much to fresh buying or selling as to the usual week-end settlement of outstanding contracts.

In the first half of the session a few specialties, chiefly petroleum, tobacco and coppers, were manipulated to higher levels, but the balance of the list failed to respond to this movement. Later the market began to drop in all quarters, with special heaviness in seasoned railway shares and some of the prominent industrials. Little remained of early gains and the tone at the close was irregular to heavy. Total sales amounted to 165,000 shares.

WOMAN HELD PRISONER BY MAD COYOTES

Brutes Peer in Windows and Make Nights Hideous with Their Noises.

ELKO, Nev., Mar. 4.—Last year O. Greenan, an employee in the Southern Pacific shops at Marysville, Cal., took up a homestead three or four miles south of Winnemucca, Nev., next to the foothills, lying between Slard's sheep camp and Chris Deiss's homestead. This year a house was built and Mrs. Greenan moved onto the place, the husband remaining at his work. Recently the coyotes became so troublesome that Mrs. Greenan concluded to spend a time with friends in Reno.

To have her house surrounded by a cordon of coyotes for four days and nights continually was a terrifying experience of Mrs. Greenan, who is a woman of middle age.

When her husband returned to his country home he found his wife on the verge of hysterics. She explained to him that the night he had left the premises she heard the howl of one coyote outside of the cabin. Upon looking out of the window she could distinguish in the moonlight the dim outline of a gaunt wolf squatted near the door. This had a tendency to make Mrs. Greenan uneasy and she passed a restless night.

Held Prisoner by Bold Brutes.
The following morning she was able to make out the forms of six of the half starved brutes and although she made all of the unusual noises she could think of the coyotes did not seem to be alarmed. She claims that they even became so bold that frequently they would rear up on their hind legs and put their snouts against the window pane.

One of the animals, she claimed, would sit for hours at a time with its sharp nose pressed to the crack of the door. Evidently the smell of food stored in the cabin attracted the animals, but as there was no weapon in the house Mrs. Greenan had no way of disposing of them. The nearest neighbor lived four miles away and there was nothing for her to do but bide her time until her husband should return.

Mrs. Greenan said she had plenty of provisions in the house and fortunately the wood and pump were in a lean-to, so that she did not have to leave the house during those four trying days. Her only pastime was to watch the hungry animals fight among themselves and live in the hope that the battle would last until they were all exterminated. But no such luck was in store for her. The famished beasts would fight until they were completely exhausted, but refused to die.

Seven in Howling Pack.
On the third day, Mrs. Greenan claims, there were seven coyotes surrounding the place, the stray one evidently having been attracted by the howls of the other six where made the night hideous.

She is glad to get out of the "crazy belt," as another place like the one she went through, she declares, would wreck her nerves. All of the animals disappeared a day before her husband returned, but there was a well beaten trail around the house where the wolves had crept the lone woman in her none too substantial barricade.
